South Carolina Commission for the Blind names new Commissioner

(COLUMBIA, SC, August 2019) - The Board of the South Carolina Commission for the Blind names Darline Graham as the new commissioner.

After current Commissioner James Kirby announced his retirement in June 2019, the Board started a search for the next commissioner.

Peter Smith, Board Chair, states, “We were fortunate to have a talented and diverse group of candidates to choose from for our next director.”

Ms. Graham has a Master’s Degree in Vocational Rehabilitation Counseling and has studied Human Resources Development. She also has experience in a number of programs related to disability services and employment. Ms. Graham will step into this leadership role in late September.

“We look forward to growing our relationship with Ms. Graham to service the blind and visually impaired citizens of South Carolina.” says Mr. Smith.

The mission of the South Carolina Commission for the Blind is to provide quality, individualized vocational rehabilitation services, independent living services, and prevention of blindness services to blind and visually impaired consumers leading to competitive employment and social and economic independence.
